Next Gen XV Media Exert

Northampton School for Boys achieved schools rugby immortality with their second Continental Tyres U15 Schools Cup title in three years, in their third final on the bounce, beating an outstanding Lord Wandsworth College side 22-5.

Only three other sides had ever reached three U15 Cup finals in a row before, RGS High Wycombe, who won the 1996 and 1997 titles and shared the 1998 final, and Warwick and QEGS Wakefield, who met three times on the trot from 2013 to 2015, Warwick winning the first two, QEGS the third.

So even in being here NSB had marked themselves out as special, but to win it was the icing on the cake, and what icing it was. The achievement from this Northamptonshire state school is nothing short of remarkable. The work of Phil Beaumont and his team across the age-groups is astonishing, not least Glen Bradbury at U15 level, and should rightly be praised all over the country.

Not least as what is often overlooked in sustained success in schoolboy terms, particularly at U15 level, is that there is almost an entire team's worth of player turnover each year. The NSB side that played so well today is completely different to last year's finalists, who were in turn completely different to the champions of the year - NSB are creating a dynasty with a brand new team each year. It is a feat that deserves us all to marvel.

Northampton School for Boys are firmly among the schools rugby legends.
